

A website for providing interactive communication between first and second users comprises displayable text provided by the first user which text is input and subsequently displayed in real time; displayable text provided by the second user which text is input and subsequently displayed in real time; and an image provided by the first user, which are input and subsequently displayed in real time so that the first user shares viewing of the image with the second user.